CCCL will be hosting Morocco Migration and Transnational Identity program for the Spring semester for a group of students from School for International Training (SIT). This program will start on January 31st and will end on May 14th, 2016. It consists of various components, among which: orientation sessions about health issues, Moroccan habits, customs and other lectures on culture, politics and religion, as well as Arabic courses. Throughout the program, the students will visit some Governmental administrations as well as some local NGOs and foundations working on the topic of migration and will have lectures that pour in the field of Migration and Transnational Identity. To ease their Arabic learning and practice, they will be placed in different homestay with families to get a full immersion in the Moroccan culture. Students will participate in four seminars and three excursions. At the end of the program, each of them will present an independent study project.
